Shopping at E-Mart

E-Mart is like the Wal-Mart of Korea. If you need pretty much anything, you can jump in a cab and say E-mart.

~~The store has several levels. Ground level is clothing, accessories, shoes, babies/children, jewelry, camping and swimming gear. Up the escalator you will find stationery, electronics, books, housewares/domestics, automotive, and additional check lanes.

~~Incidentally, the food court upstairs has excellent food for such a place, but they don't serve drinks. The bathroom is in the very back corner through the "food court" and the toilets are so complicated that the instruction manual is posted on the stall door.

~~In the basement is the grocery store. They have fresh bread and baked goods, along with all the other items you would expect in a supermarket. Some health and beauty items, however, have to be purchased in a pharmacy instead. Like hand sanitizer, for example. Which you need to have in Korea.
